

Fishergate Postern Tower

Fishergate Postern Tower (FPT) is located where Piccadilly reaches the City Walls. It was built around 1505 at the end of the walls by the River Foss, where water lapped its foundations, creating a natural defence for the city.

It has four floors, a spiral staircase, a complete garderobe and several masons' marks. The roof was added in the late 1500's and this turned the battlements at the top of the tower into a row of square windows on the top floor.

The Friends of York Walls lease the tower from the City of York Council; we display information there about the tower and the history of the City Walls. Entry to the tower is free on our open days, but individual visits can be arranged for a donation. Currently we need money for internal electrical installations, lighting, displays, and roof repairs. For a £20 donation, you can also "Sponsor a Stone" in your name or for someone else; in this scheme a particular stone on an external wall of Fishergate Postern Tower is then linked to your donation. Any donations will help FoYW to return the recently unused tower to fuller community use, and to improve the displays and the internal facilities.

York's City Walls

York's medieval City Walls (or "Bar Walls"), a scheduled ancient monument encircling the historic City of York, comprise 3.4km (2 miles) of surviving masonry. They are the most complete town walls in England. They were built mainly in the 13th century of Magnesian Limestone and, uniquely in England, were set on earthen ramparts.

York's City Walls offer a splendid elevated walk around the city. The accompanying moats have largely disappeared but the slopes of the ramparts are well known for the display of daffodils in March and April of each year.

A walk all round the walls [going up on the wall-walk, or just using the pavement outside them] takes about 2 hours. This is if you pause to look at the main features without going in any towers, etc.. There are four main bars, or fortified gateways, two smaller bars and one postern (a very small gateway defended by a tower), many other towers and details like arrow slits, musket loops, sculptures and masons' marks. There are also good views of many interesting and important buildings from the walls.

Wheelchairs and pushchairs are not practical up on the narrow wall-walk but there is good access to the Museum Gardens with York's best Roman walls, including the Multangular Tower which is topped with a row of medieval arrow-slits. Also here are the ruins of St Mary's Abbey; the medieval defensive walls around the Abbey are the best preserved in England, and were built at the same time as the City Walls. FoYW are concerned with these as well as with the City Walls, Clifford's Tower and the stretch of medieval castle wall nearby.
